Arkansas Gets Aluminum Plant

Bauxite, the ore from which aluminum metal comes, has been mined in Arkansas for a generation, but always it has been shipped out of the state for final processing. This now is changed, for the Aluminum Company of America is building with federal funds an aluminum plant in the Hot Springs-Malvern-Benton triangle.

Several things occur to us, after reading yesterday's announcement.

For one thing, this means the end of that era in which Arkansas simply furnished cheap raw materials to other states, which then got all the labor benefits of working raw materials into finished products. Now we shall mine bauxite and also turn it into aluminum.

And, for another thing, this location of the aluminum plant at the base of the Ozarks foothills is significant. The new plant will be close to both the bauxite ore and hydro-electric power—but, more broadly speaking, this location at the foot of the mountains reminds this writer of a similar industrial program which started a generation ago at the base of the Piedmont mountains in North Carolina.

Where the mountain rivers flow out on the coastal plains seems to be a strategic location for industry. In the Carolinas it built up a textile industry which today tops New England's old steam-powered mills, and built up a cheap-furniture industry which today challenges Grand Rapids, Mich. And for all of us who live between the Ozarks and the sea, therefore, this news brings renewed hope that modern industry is coming our way to balance accounts with a tradition formerly 100 per cent agricultural.

Welcome, Mr. Kuru!

Saburo Kuru, special envoy from the Japanese government, is a welcome guest in the United States. We are happy indeed to wish him well, for nothing would please the United States better than resumption of the most cordial relations with the Japanese people.

Delightful as is the trans-Pacific journey by clipper ship, it is to be presumed that Mr. Kuru has not made the journey purely to experience those delights. It is to be presumed that he made the journey because he had something to propose, something to suggest.

Because there is usually considered to be a wide gap between the ways of thinking in the western world and that of the east which Mr. Kuru represents it might be worth while to call to his attention to a way of western thought. It is this: when two equal negotiators are far from agreement to bring them together it is customary for each to come half way; each must concede something. Agreement is not reached by telling one party what will happen if the other does not come all the way. That works perhaps when one negotiator is Hitler the other is Schuschnigg. It doesn't work when one is Japan the other the United States.

Japan has done certain things in East Asia. These acts have caused the United States to do certain things in return.

The United States has not taken the lead; every move it has taken has been a counter-move in natural and almost automatic reaction to a Japanese move. There is the best of reasons to suppose that whatever moves the United States takes in the future will be direct results of Japanese moves. Japan has seen fit to take the initiative; here is the responsibility for what results follow.

Today it is the same. It is Japan's move. The United States while not content with the situation as it is, sees no other course it can take as long as Japanese initiative remains what it is.

The speech of Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo to the Japanese Diet suggests that Japan's attitude is: "We propose to go on doing just as we are."

Miss Mary Joe Monroe Is Queen of Homecoming Festivities

Hope fans have a chance to see one of the state's best football teams in action here Friday night when the Bobcats tangle with the North Little Rock Wildcats in a conference contest. It will be the last home game for the Hope team.

It will be homecoming for the Bobcats and Miss Mary Joe Monroe will reign as queen. Crowning of the queen will precede the kickoff. Her maids are Martha Ann Alexander, Rose Marie Hendrix, Mary Elizabeth Bright, and Dorothy Moore.

The heavy Wildcats boast one of the best teams in the state and will outweigh the Bobcats 30 pounds to the man. The Wildcats are tied with Blytheville first place in the Arkansas conference and have lost only to Blytheville. They were also tied by the Pine Bluff Zebras.

Friday night's game will be the last time Hope fans will get to see Jimmy Simms play on the home field. The flashy Bobcat back has led the offensive for the Hope team for the past three seasons and is considered one of the best football players in the state. Halfback Ponder, like Simms, will be playing his last home game.

Besides being favored to win by a top-sided score the Wildcats must win this two remaining game to have a chance for the state title. Scoring victories over Hope and Little Rock next week-end would clinch at least a tie.

J. L. Holmes Confesses to Killing of O. Cheatham

The sheriff's department announced Friday that Jerry Lewis Holmes, 30-year-old McNab negro, had confessed to shooting and killing Ossie Cheatham also of McNab, last Sunday night following a gambling session.

Cheatham was shot in the back in the woods near his home and died almost instantly.

Several other negroes who were gambling with Cheatham and Holmes were lodged in the Hempstead county jail on gambling charges.

The county and state police department carried out the investigation.

Russians Halt German Drives

Attempts to Thrust Nearer Moscow Are Beaten Off

LONDON —(AP)—A German push on Moscow which was said by the Russians to have been launched last Thursday was declared by the Moscow radio Friday to have been beaten off in bloody fighting.

German losses in men and machines was described in the broadcast as "tremendous sacrifices." In at least one place counter attacks were said to have dislodged the Germans from early gains.

The Moscow radio also broadcast dispatches from Tass, official Russia news agency, saying bloody fighting was now in progress in the central, northern and southern sectors of "our defenses" where the enemy launched an offensive on November 18.

"Fighting is especially tense in the north sector of the front where the enemy flung in large forces of tanks and infantry and tried to break through to the town of 'K'."

"One of our units, supported by tanks, counter attacked near 'K' and occupied two villages, ambushed the headquarters of large amounts of equipment."

"On November 19 the enemy continued to strive forward despite heavy losses during the night in the area of 'S'. He threw into action 50 tanks followed by infantry. At a cost of tremendous sacrifices the Germans advanced from two to three kilometers and took several villages. In one sector Soviet counter attacks dislodged the enemy from 'Z'."

"In the Volokolamsk direction the Germans hurled in 8 divisions including 4 tank divisions, 3 infantry and one SS elite division."

"The enemy launched an offensive in several places trying to break through and strike at the Soviet rear. Grim fighting is in progress in the area of the villages of 'P' and 'B'. Our troops are staunchly checking the enemy onslaught."

"One Soviet unit ousted the enemy from two villages—All German attempts to take 'M' also failed. The radio concluded."

One Month Left to Obtain 1942 Auto Licenses

Deadline Is Dec. 31; Urged to Turn in Old Aluminum Plates

I. L. Pilkinton, revenue inspector for this county, states that 1942 car, truck, trailer, and motorcycle, driver's and chauffeur's licenses went on sale November 1, and applications may be made at the revenue office at the courthouse. The inspector points out that to avoid delay in procuring license plates, you must have the following information when making application:

Make of car, truck, or trailer.
Style of car, capacity of truck and trailer.

Motor number.
Serial number of trailers
Year model.
Driver's license number.
1941 License tag number.

Any person living in or out of the state of Arkansas, who desires 1942 Arkansas license tags between now and December 31 must pay, if he has not already done so, the 1941 license fee on the particular vehicle to be registered, except vehicles owned by members of the United States Navy, Army, and Marine corps.

Any person between the ages of 16 and 18 may procure a driver's license to operate a motor vehicle upon the highways of the state, provided he has successfully passed the driver's test given by a patrolman of the Arkansas State Police Department. His application must be signed by his parents or guardian.

Any person between the ages of 14 and 16 may procure a restricted driver's license which will enable him to operate a motor vehicle upon the highways of the state only when accompanied by a licensed operator who must occupy the front seat next to the driver. Persons of this age must also pass the driver's test given by a Patrolman of the State Police Department, and their applications must be signed by their parents or guardian.

The inspector asks the cooperation of the motoring public in saving old aluminum for defense. All persons making application for new license plates are asked to deposit their old car, truck, or trailer license plates at the revenue office, to save the old aluminum, which may be used in National Defense work.

All motor vehicle owners are asked to make application for their licenses at an early date to avoid the rush. The deadline for purchase of 1942 license is December 31.

Gov. Adkins to Pay Hope Visit Date Tentatively Set Dec. 9, Bowen Tells Rotary

Governor Homer M. Adkins will visit Hope for a banquet meeting here tentatively scheduled for December 9, R. P. Bowen, secretary of Hope Chamber of Commerce, told the Rotary club Friday noon at First Christian church. Mr. Bowen was introduced by Fred Cook, program chairman.

The chamber of commerce plans to hold the banquet meeting at the cafeteria of the Southwestern Proving Ground, Mr. Bowen said.

The chamber secretary gave the Rotarians a general review of C. of C. activities, including plans for an intensive Christmas trade promotion featuring fireworks and other free attractions.

The chamber's safety committee, headed by Ched Hall, held a meeting Thursday night attended by more than 100, Mr. Bowen said, and heard reports that two Hope factories had operated for 11 months without an accident. Mr. Bowen said the report was excellent for a city with 750 factory employees.

Federal Action Deferred Until Group Reports

Meanwhile 10 More Shot in Fayette County, Penn.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt indicated Friday that no federal action might be expected in the captive coal mine dispute before he received a reply Saturday from John L. Lewis stating the position of the United Mine Workers' policy committee on the chief executive's latest appeal for settlement.

President has asked for either maintenance of a status quo on the issue of a closed shop or an agreement to arbitrate with any resulting decision being accepted in advance.

Lewis Rejects Appeal
While Lewis indicated the appeal would be rejected by the United Mine Workers' committee, he didn't think there would be any development in the situation until Saturday.

Ten men, 3 saying they were pickets, were shot and wounded in a new clash between pickets and non-striking miners in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, center of the captive mine industry. Three were wounded there Thursday.

Furnaces Shutdown
Shutdown of fuel, due to the strike, at the Carnegie Steel Co. caused the shutdown of 5 additional blast furnaces, making 1 closed since the strike became effective last Monday.

Steel companies figure that production of steel ingots, vital for defense use, would be reduced 20 per cent in the Pittsburgh district.

Roosevelt's statement was made at his press conference, as sympathy walkouts in mines spread to 3 in Ohio. Asked whether he meant development "on your own initiative" when he said he expected none until Saturday, the President said he expected to hear from Lewis and the policy committee Saturday.

Denounces Strike Breaking
DETROIT —(AP)—The CIO in a resolution adopted by its annual convention Friday called upon President Roosevelt "to direct that the training of selectees and other service men for strike-breaking be immediately stopped."

"Such training is contrary to the intent and letter of the selective service act and a breach of faith of labor, and this convention denounces such practices and wants it stopped," the resolution said.

Sunday School Lesson

Thanksgiving Season Proper Time For All to Learn Blessings of Prayer
Text: Matthew 6:5-15; Ephesians 5:20; I Thessalonians 5:16-18

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

A lesson on prayer and thanksgiving links two things in the Christian life which go together. We cannot be truly thankful except in the spirit of prayer; for otherwise our thankfulness may be conceived only with ourselves. Nor can we be prayerful except in the spirit of thanksgiving, for our approach to God is unreal and inadequate unless back of all our praying is what Paul expressed in his cry, "Thanks be to God for His unspeakable gift."

All this is emphasized in the Lord's prayer, which is the heart of our lesson. Note that this prayer was not given as a form to be used, although it is fitting that it has become so widely used a form. It expresses the manner in which all our prayer must be made.

Let us note a few things concerning this manner. First, the prayer begins with God and with reverence toward Him. Then, the first petition and the second petition concern the plans and purposes of God, and not some want or desire of our own. The first petition is that God's kingdom may come and the second is the interpellative addition that His will may be done in earth as it is done in heaven.

It is only upon this high plane that the Christian comes to pray for his own needs, and the Christian's prayer is not for wealth or abundance but for daily bread. The next petition links the Christian both with his fellowmen and with God, because he prays for forgiveness of his own trespasses he asks only that he may be forgiven as he forgives others.

What a remarkable petition that is, and how high it sets the standard for our relationship with our fellowmen! The prayer for deliverance from evil is an expansion of this prayer for forgiveness, and the Lord's Prayer ends as it began, with adoration to God and contemplation of His goodness.

Paul admonished the early Christians to pray without ceasing, and it is easy to pray without ceasing this sort of prayer, for it is not only expressed in words but it is the constant aspiration of the devout soul.

There is a great deal of bewilderment concerning prayer on the part of many people, and this is not lessened by much that is written concerning prayer. Yet the nature and practice of prayer are both comparatively simple. Prayer is an instinctive expression of the thoughtful soul in a world like ours. Whether we realize it or not, we cry out constantly and spontaneously when we are in need or in trouble. Even the atheist will cry out to God without realizing that he is doing so, in some experience of great peril or trial.

But true prayer for the Christian is a conscious act. The only thing

Rev. Hubbard to Speak Here

To Address Meeting of Young People at Tabernacle

The Rev. O. B. Hubbard, pastor of the College Hill Assembly of God church, Texarkana, will be the special speaker at the Southwestern Arkansas Christ's Ambassadors Rally in the Hope Gospel Tabernacle Monday night, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The Rev. Mr. Hubbard is well known throughout the state as an outstanding young people's speaker, and Tabernacle young people said the entire section looks forward to hearing him here on Monday night.

It is believed that several hundred Christ's Ambassadors will crowd into the large Hope Gospel Tabernacle Monday night to participate in the quarterly rally. Delegations are expected from practically every town in Southwest Arkansas, including El Dorado, Camden, Snackover, Malvern, Hot Springs, Arkadelphia, Texarkana, and many others.

Mrs. Agnes Stokes, state Christ's Ambassadors president will preside.

There was enough money in circulation October 31 for every person in U. S. to have $77.55 in his jeans. Maybe there's a hole in your pocket.

Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese statesman, is a graduate of the Oregon Law School.

It is needed to see that prayer is a spiritual discipline. It is not a sort of magic by which we get things that an all-wise Father may know would be for our hurt rather than our blessing. It is, rather, a very real way of appropriating things of God and making these vital in our characters and daily lives.

Beautiful Havana Is Locale of Gay New Musical Film at Saenger

'Week-End in Havana' Opens Here Sunday

Glamour, Romance, Adventure Packed in Saenger's Latest Picture

Joining the captivating atmosphere of old Spain with the modernity of a growing Latin-America, Havana, long acclaimed by travelers the pleasure center of the Caribbean, is a city of romance, glamor and adventure.

It was with these attributes in mind that the 20th Century-Fox studio selected this gem of Latin-America as the locale for its third Technicolor musical about our Pan-American neighbors, "Week-End in Havana," which shows this beautiful capital city of Cuba in all its natural beauty.

Many Americans vacation there—and this is what they see: Entering the beautiful harbor, one first glimpses famed Morro Castle, then the panorama of the city unfolds. After docking, the drive through the narrow picturesque streets to the heart of the city begins. Old Spanish architecture with its grilled windows, overhanging balconies and flower-filled patios blend with the modern-sized skyscrapers in the style of modern America as one rides along.

Arriving at the hotel, which is as luxurious as the one John Payne selects in his efforts to make Alice Faye's "Week-End in Havana" the most pleasant in her life, one has a choice of things to do.

But it's night, and things are starting to happen:

First, take in a Jai Alai game—the fastest in the world—played with hooked baskets attached to the player's arm and performed with lightning speed. Then, a visit to Havana's Chinatown. And finally, the high spot of the night, we drive to the alluring Cabaret Sans Souci and later to the Montmartre. Here the tropical magic, the catchy Cuban rhythms, warm-blooded serenades and dark-eyed Romances combine to make Havana the dream spot of the world. It is in a club similar to these that Carmen Miranda does her famous dances and Cesar Romero is her manager in "Week-End in Havana."

Finish off with a night cap at Sloppy Joe's, perhaps the most colorful of all the Havana night spots. There

Whether this is to be the proposal of Mr. Kurosu remains to be seen. It would be unfair to guess prematurely that he came all the way from Japan to say no more than this. So we must wait until his proposals unfold. But in the meantime it is only fair to suggest that one-way proposals that other nations simply throw in their hand and allow Japan to finish the game and take the pot would seem scarcely worth the fare from Tokio to Washington.

THE STORY: A handsome Stephen Curt, famous writer and commentator, about to offer her a job. Diana Tucker cannot understand why he followed her when she left the office of his lawyers after telling her former employer, Richard Thorpe, in Curt's presence, to go to the devil, why he asked her to dinner. Curt's interest has been captured by the beautiful, fiery, red-headed girl. Naturally she is interested in him, even aside from her reluctance to return to her downstate farm home, her hope that she can find another job in the city. Does Curt know, she wonders, that her dismissal from Durbin and Thorpe had resulted from her resistance to flirtatious Richard Thorpe's advances?

STRANGE PROPOSAL

CHAPTER IV

DIANA sat up straighter. Stephen Curt was going to offer her a job as she had hoped, but he was going about it oddly. As her eyes searched his face he began to speak very slowly as if choosing his words carefully so as to not be misunderstood.

"My father died several years ago, leaving me a very respectable though eccentric stepmother who loves me and whom I love very much. My own mother couldn't have taken more tender care of my sister, Adela, and me. But she's willful and domineering—a regular teragant—she grows worse as she grows older—and unhappily my father left his entire fortune for her to administer. My father's will had several extraordinary clauses."

"But what," Diana was thinking, "has all this to do with me? I'm the one who's seeking a job—I should be giving the references. How strange that Stephen Curt should think I ought to know this!"

Stephen Curt went on. "Knowing my proclivity to bachelorhood my father made his will to read that if I have not married by the time I am 35, his entire fortune, except for a bequest to Adela, will go to certain charities instead of to me. My stepmother's one purpose in life is to see that I don't try to break that clause. She has the devil's own stubbornness and—she drew a deep breath—"my 35th birthday is approaching rapidly. In fact by this time next month, it will have come and gone."

Diana's gray eyes were wide open with astonishment. She was staring at Stephen Curt.

"I mean that there is at the moment no one whom I care to make my wife—literally. Neither do I relish the idea of losing approximately two million dollars—though I shall certainly earn enough during my lifetime."

He paused and Diana waited, unable to speak.

"I was impressed by you as a girl of spirit," he went on. "When I came down in the elevator, I was hoping I might overtake you."

He reached in his pocket and drew out a small jeweler's box, toying with it for a moment.

"I've been carrying this about, hoping I might find a solution to my problem," he continued. "Since you need employment, I am offering you a job as my wife for a reasonable length of time—until all conditions of the will have been complied with, and a divorce shall be arranged—say six months at the most." He smiled briefly. "You see, my father failed to stipulate that there should not be a divorce. I assure you it is a job which will place no requirements on you in any way, except your presence in my house with me and my sister, Adela. And of course you'll be free to come and go as you like."

WITH a quick twitch of his finger, he opened the lid of the box and thrust it into Diana's hand. Her amazed eyes beheld two rings—one a large, square-cut diamond, and the other a stone-incrusted wedding ring.

"I hope you won't think I'm utterly out of my mind," he said with a rueful smile, "but if you will wear those rings for a short time and help me out of this difficulty—I will pay you $10,000 at the conclusion of our contract!"

Ten thousand dollars! It was the most amazing thing she had ever heard.

"But surely—you're joking in my life," he said. "Take a moment—get used to the idea. There's really nothing alarming about it. A purely business proposition. We're both civilized products of the 20th century—like each other on sight." He smiled. "Or didn't you?"

"Oh, yes."

"If I had offered you a job as my secretary, you'd have accepted eagerly, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, of course."

"This will be nothing more, really. If it will make you feel better, I'll even let you type notes for me."

"Please," said Diana, trembling. "Stop talking!"

He sat quietly then, looking at her, while the dinner cooled between them.

Finally Diana said slowly, "But surely your stepmother doesn't want you to marry—just anyone!"

He smiled. "Decidedly not—she'll have to pass judgment on you, but I'm sure she'll approve."

"You have no way of knowing anything of the sort. Besides, there must be someone you know well—someone you care for—"

Stephen spoke gravely, as if saying the words cost him a great effort. "There is no one. You see, the woman I love is married to another man."

"Oh!" So that was it! He had not used the past tense, either. He had said "the woman I love." He was carrying a torch for someone—someone who had loved another more than he.

"I can be safe with a man like that," Diana was thinking, "until I get my bearings. Really establish myself here. It's not selfish to think of my future—he's making all the suggestions. Then—after a few months—10 thousand dollars—a little dress shop of my own perhaps. Security—I could always live here—be independent. It's honorable, too—his loving someone makes it all very safe and sure."

"Well, what do you say?"

"I—I don't know. When would it have to be?"

"Within the month, naturally. Come, my dear, I'll see that you have a very pleasant time."

"Yes, I can see that." She faced him squarely. "When would you want your stepmother to—pass judgment on me?"

"Why not now—tonight?"

"Tonight!" Again she had that breathless feeling of running to keep up with him. Life was certainly rushing her today. To lose one job and one's temper, to meet a fascinatingly brilliant man and have him propose marriage—to be offered a contract calling for payment of $10,000—any one of these events would have made an exciting day. But to have them all crowded into one! Having the eccentric old woman who controlled the Curt fortune pass judgment on her would perhaps provide the climax of the series.

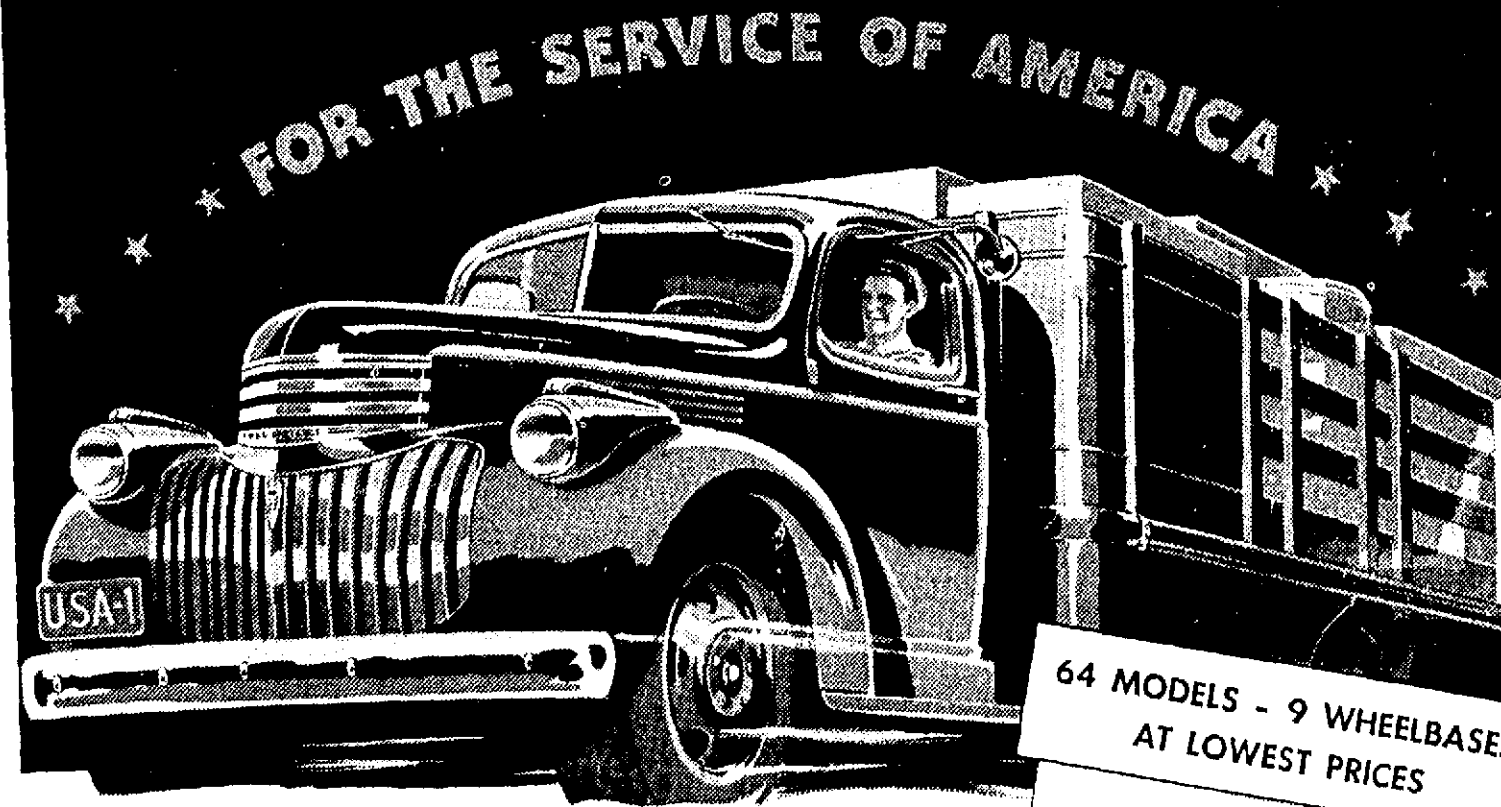

"Very well," she said steadily. "Let's go."

He looked ruefully at her untouched food. "You were so anxious to dine at the Savoy and here I've made you lose your appetite. I was a clump not to wait until you'd finished. Never mind, we'll come again."

They waited in the foyer while Stephen's car was brought around. Then they were on their way to Ellen Curt's apartment.
